

Bachelor of Arts in Public Service

The undergraduate major in public service is offered by the Graduate School of Public and International Affairs. It is designed to prepare students for a broad range of careers that are focused on the resolution of public problems or the delivery of public services. These careers range from those in the local government and community arena, to the metropolitan region and state arena, to national and international settings. Potential employers include state, local, and federal governments; nonprofit and nongovernmental organizations at the local, regional, national, or international level; private firms engaged in working with governments; and private corporations with an active public service culture. The major serves students who are interested in public issues as concerned and interested citizens and prepares students for a wide range of graduate programs related to public policy and management.

The public service minor adds professional dimension to various Kenneth P. Dietrich School of Arts and Sciences majors including political science, anthropology, economics, urban studies, and sociology.

Required Supporting Course Work

Students are required to take a course in statistics (STAT 0200 Basic Applied Statistics or an equivalent course) and two courses from a related department such as economics, political science, psychology, sociology, or another department approved by an academic advisor.

Graduate School Option

The Graduate School of Public and International Affairs offers an early admission option for public service majors in the College of General Studies. Students with a quality point average of 3.5 or better planning to pursue graduate work may want to consider the graduate school option for early admission to their graduate program. Contact an academic advisor for details.

Minor Requirements

Students interested in a minor, rather than a major, in public service should check with their academic advisor. For College of General Studies students, the minor would be professional elective course work. For Kenneth P. Dietrich School of Arts and Sciences students, the minor would be non-Dietrich School of Arts and Sciences elective course work. For the minor, students must complete five courses (15 credits) with at least three courses from the University of Pittsburgh. A 2.0 average is required in the minor.
